DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Muramatsu (US 2006/0063113).

Muramatsu teaches an antireflection film comprising a transparent support, at least one hard coat layer, and a low refractive index layer wherein the hard coat layer includes a polymerized product of an ethylene oxide adduct of a polyfunctional acrylate monomer (paragraph 0013). The polyfunctional acrylate monomer may be a trimethylolpropane tri(meth)acrylate, i.e. a monomer having three (meth)acryloyl groups (paragraph 0015). The low refractive index layer may be formed from a radiation curable fluorine-containing polymer (paragraph 0148). The radiation curable fluorine-containing polymer may include a monomer for imparting crosslinking property (paragraph 0149), such as methylol (meth)acrylate monomer (paragraph 0151). In one embodiment, a smooth hard coat layer may be provided between the substrate and the hard coat layer (paragraph 0137). The smooth hard coat layer comprises the same material as the hard coat layer except for the presence of matt particles (paragraph 0138).

Regarding claim 2, the hard coat layer reads on the high refractive index layer since it is designed to have an increased refractive index (see e.g. paragraph 0127).

Regarding claims 3 and 4, reacting a fluorine-containing polymer with a methylol (meth)acrylate monomer will result in grafting of the methylol (meth)acrylate monomer to the fluorine-containing polymer such that the resulting grafted polymer will have a carbon-carbon double bond in a side chain.

Conclusion

4. It is noted that US 2006/0063113 is the published national stage application resulting from WO 2004/066001 A1. Since WO 2004/066001 A1 was (a) filed after 29 November 2000, (b) published in English, and (c) designated the United States, the 35 U.S.C. 102(e) date of US 2006/0063113 is the international filing date (i.e. 22 January 2003).
